by Supreme Court. The Supreme Court yesterday decided the Tipton city treasury case, Judge Monks, who wrote the opinion, declaring that a City Council may appoint for the whole of an unexpired term. The contention of the other side was that such an appointment could only hold until the next city elec-tion, Eli A. Thatcher was elected city treasurer of Tipton in the spring of 1894 his term running from September, 1894, to September, 1898. He died in January, 1895 and in February the City Council appointed John E. Carson to succeed him. Thatcher and Carson were Republicans. The Democrats held that the appointment would only hold until a successor coul be elected and accordingly at the the councilmanic election this spring placed Michael Bath upon their ticket for treasurer. He was declared elected, but Carson refused to give up the office. Bath began quo war-ranto proceedings to oust him and the Tipton Circuit Court decided against Carson. He appealed to the Supreme Court and the transcript was filed on June 9. The Supreme Court reversed the decision of the ower court.
